1. Proszę przeczytać poniższy tekst.

The image is a collage. At the top, a white banner with a black border and a film strip pattern contains the text "SUNDANCE Film Festival". Below this, on the left, is a photograph of a building at night with a sign that says "GYPTIAN" and "SUNDANCE FESTIVAL". On the right, a white rectangular area contains a text block with a torn edge effect. The text discusses the Sundance Film Festival, its location in Park City, Utah, its history starting in 1981 with Robert Redford, and details about the festival's purpose, ticket prices, and activities like the Film Music Showcase and Roundtable.

Are you a film lover? Do you enjoy watching films that are not blockbusters? Then you should definitely fly to the USA and visit the Sundance Film Festival. The festival takes place every year in Park City, Utah in January or February. In 1981, Robert Redford, one of Utah's resident celebrities, helped to create this organisation which promotes quality films.

Every year, the festival reviews thousands of films from all over the world from animations to thrillers. Then, they choose a selection to appear in the festival. The purpose of the festival is to find films that inspire, move and thrill viewers. A lot of these films are made with little money, without the help of big-budget studios.

Tickets to watch a single film are about $20. This might sound expensive, but you may get the chance to sit next to the director or some cast members of the film! There is also a Film Music Showcase and a Film Music Roundtable where composers and directors talk about how a film soundtrack is created. Temperatures at this time of year in Utah are very low, so bring lots of warm clothes with you!

All in all, visiting the Sundance Film Festival is the perfect way to learn about and enjoy independent films, whether you are a writer, actor, director, or simply a fan of good cinema.
